Another Record Breaker.

The Essex County Building and Loan Association is a Bloomfield institution, a product of Bloomfield brains and an excellent example of Bloomfield enterprise. As a Building and Loan Association the Essex County holds a right hand place in the front rank among institutions of its kind in this State. The homes that have been built through its instrumentality number many hundreds; the people who have been educated along lines of thrift and economy by membership in the Essex County Building and Loan Association are numbered by the thousands. The people of Bloomfield can well be proud of the work of this great institution. The homes that it has been the medium of building, the people it has aided along right lines are a flat contradiction to those pessimists who are continually decrying Bloomfield.

It argues well for the future of Bloomfield that the latest series of shares opened in the Essex County Building and Loan Association at the April meeting was a record breaker in the number of shares subscribed for. Over 900 were taken out, and the demand for loans for home building purposes is unprecedented. The financial business carried on by the Essex County association has reached marvelous proportions.

Theorists have argued that the maturity of the first series in a building and loan association marked the limit of its growth, and from that period the process of contraction would begin. The breaking of the record in the opening of the thirtieth series works confusion among the theorists, and they have given up theorizing in so far as the Essex County Association is concerned.

Shares in the new series can be subscribed for at every Friday night meeting of the Board of Directors. The board is composed of the following well-known residents of the town: George W. Panooset, Thomas H. Albinoon, Frank B. Stone, George Roubaud, Wm. H. Bittner, Barkley Wyckoff, Charles L. Selbert, George Peterson, Howard Bidulph, Charles J. Murray, James Y. Nicol, Samuel Eiler, Peter J. Quinn, Philip Bickler, John M. Hague.

Tricked the Stamp Fiend.

Stamp collectors are delighted when they secure a specimen which was issued before some mistake in printing was detected. During the Buffalo exposition the government issued a stamp to commemorate the occasion which depicted the Empire express train. A practical joker cut out the central part of one of the stamps which contained the train and carefully replaced it so that the train was in an upside down position. This he pasted on an envelope and mailed it to a friend who was a rabid collector.

The practiced eye of the stamp fiend at once discovered the misplaced position of the train, but did not notice the deception, and the collector was almost wild with joy until he offered it for sale, when he was informed that it was not a "rare" but a "cut out" stamp he preserved.—New York Press.

Eggs.

It is not only eggs that vary in name without varying in quality. The present writer was once told when hesitating between "fresh eggs" at ten a shilling and "good breakfast eggs" at eight a shilling or something to that effect that these two brands were precisely the same, but had to be sold as two qualities because no customers would buy eggs at a shop where only one quality was advertised. That may or may not be so. The fact remains that there are many qualities of eggs known to all housewives before we get down to what a London comedian termed briefly "eggs."—London Chronicle.

Where Wealth Is Woven.

At Gombi a man's wealth is reckoned first by the number of slaves he owns, next by the number of wives and then by the number of chests, empty or otherwise, he possesses. To give security to these chests, locks of American make are in great demand all over the country, and keys in large numbers are worn by the natives as the outward symbol of abundant property, though it is quite likely that many of the chests are entirely empty.

Then He Did Walk.

Little Brother—Can't you walk straight, Mr. Mangle? Mr. Mangle—Of course I can, my little man. Why do you ask? Little Brother—Oh, nothing, only I heard sister say she'd soon straighten you up when she married you. And ma said she'd help her.

Woman.

Woman has been defined as "an essay of goodness and grace in one volume, elegantly bound." But she doesn't like to be put on the shelf all the same.

Relations are the cause of most of the friction that takes place in social life.—A. C. Plowden.

Hospital Subscriptions.

Subscriptions to the Mountsinide Hospital were made by Judge Amos Dodd, Mrs. Dodd, Miss Louise Dodd, Mrs. E. Belnekar, Mrs. Theodore Ward, Mrs. R. M. Nickham, Mrs. Ralph H. Thompson, Mr. David G. Garabrant, Mrs. R. K. Schuyler, T. H. Albinoon, W. J. Baldwin, Mrs. B. Bromley, Cash, C. S. Douglas, Fronapfel Bros., Mrs. F. Hoobstahl, Mrs. A. Hoobstahl, William Johnson, Mrs. A. Kelly, John Kohf, Arthur Leuthausser, William Lobel, H. D. McCann, John Metz, Mrs. G. W. Monopenny, Mrs. J. K. Oakes, Mrs. W. A. Ritscher, Jr., Ogden & Cadmus, H. Snyder, Mrs. E. Lutz.

ALL RECORDS BROKEN.

W. W. Keyler, the popular druggist, who introduced in Bloomfield Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia with such wonderful success, says that he is hearing from druggists in other parts of the country, where the plan that he urged the Dr. Howard Co. to adopt (introducing their specific by selling at half price) had been followed.

W. W. Keyler showed the CITIZEN man a letter he recently received from O. S. Ingraham of Elmira, one of the best known druggists in New York State. Mr. Ingraham writes: "I have never undertaken the introduction of a new remedy with such satisfactory results, both to myself and to my trade. My average sales have been nearly a hundred bottles per week, and I have every reason to think this will be doubled within a short time."

"The specific gives remarkable results in the most obstinate cases of dyspepsia and constipation, and although every package has been sold under my personal guarantee to refund the money if it did not give satisfaction, not one has been returned."

"My experience has been a duplicate of my Elmira friend's," said W. W. Keyler, "except that I have had one customer ask for her money back, which I returned without any questions. However, I do not think she could have given the remedy a fair trial. I am still selling the specific at half price, a fifty cent bottle of sixty doses for 25 cents, although I do not know how long I shall be able to do so, and your readers had better take advantage of this chance before it is too late."—Add.

Old New York.

MR. EDITOR: Early in the last century there were comparatively few private residences below Canal street. About 1825 Wm. Niblo, who kept a popular restaurant in Pine street, purchased the lots on the corner of Broadway and Prince street through to Crosby street. He built two four-story brick houses on Broadway and flitted up the corner lot to Crosby street for a garden. In it he planted a full variety of tropical trees, orange, palm, etc., also flowers of all kinds; there were pretty little nooks in which were cosy tables and chairs. Niblo's Garden, as it was called, was very popular during the summer months. For one shilling entrance fee, visitors could be supplied with a plate of ice cream. It was a grand lounging place for the young people especially. I have no doubt that there are many people now living who will recollect many pleasant hours they have passed there.

Mr. Niblo also erected a summer theatre adjoining the garden, which during the winter months was comfortably enclosed and eventually became known as the Metropolitan Theatre. During the winter months for several years this was used for a series of balls given by an association of young society men known as the Assemblies Applicants. Names for admission had to be passed upon by the managing committee and one black ball excluded the candidate. Dancing then was quite a different thing from that of the present time—the old-fashioned quadrille, plain waltz, Spanish dance, Virginia reel and the lauders, the schottische being unknown.

As the population increased houses began to be more numerous above Canal street, and omnibuses began to make their appearance. The starting point was corner of Wall and Nassau streets; within certain limits they would call for passengers at either end of the route; passage, one shilling. One line was up Broadway to Fourteenth street, one up the Bowery and one to Greenwich village as it was then called. On this route there was a Mr. Stout who made it a point to ride to Wall street and back every day, simply for the ride.

In the early part of the century this section was out of town. There was, however, a young man who rented a large tract of land for farming purposes and raising vegetables for the New York market. The owner of this land persuaded Mr. Amos, (the farmer), to purchase the same on long credit. After much consideration he agreed on terms and paid in cash five hundred dollars on account. Now that night Mr. Amos did not sleep; the immensity of the transaction was more than he could endure, and the next morning he begged to be released from his bargain, but in vain. This property was bounded by what is now Hudson, Christopher, Troy street and North River. Soon after this purchase the State of New York decided upon this location to build a State prison and paid Mr. Amos for a small portion of this property, more than the whole section cost him. He built a row of two-story brick houses on Hudson street, from Amos to Christopher streets; they are still standing.

Mr. Amos was peculiar in some respects. He never kept a bank account, and hid his surplus money in various places. After his death there was found in the brickwork about the fireplace ten thousand dollars in $1,000 bills; his estate was valued at about $200,000, which in those days was quite a fortune. I remember seeing a book published in 1840 containing the names of the rich men of New York. Several of them were rated at $200,000.

Lycium Notes.

Regular meeting next Monday evening. Interesting reports from Baseball, Jubilee, Diocesan Base-Ball League, and other committees will be heard. The meeting room has been entirely renovated during the past month and the change that has been wrought by the House Committee speaks volumes for its energetic chairman J. A. Durr.

A special meeting of the Young Ladies' Auxiliary has been called for Sunday afternoon at 4 P. M. by President Miss Winifred Hickey. Several very important propositions are to be presented at this meeting for action by the members.

On Wednesday evening May 3, the members of the Orange Valley Lyceum and their friends to the number of 250 will visit the local Lyceum. All arrangements for their entertainment is in the hands of a very able committee of which Edward Gruber is chairman. Everybody knows what Ed. is capable of, and its entire success is assured. All the friends of the Lyceum are invited to be present.

The beauty, purity and fitness of genuine cut-glass vases as Easter gifts cannot be surpassed. The Dorfinger stores show great variety with a wide range of prices. 3 and 5 West 19th St., and 36 Murray St., New York.—Add.

UNIVERSAL

There is but one opinion about the Gas Range. Every woman who uses one agrees it is the perfected means of cooking and every woman who cooks with coal wishes she had one. Summer is the season to enjoy life. It is the playtime of the year. But there isn't much fun in spending the hot days in an over-heated kitchen. Summer is just beginning. Get a Gas Range and leave drudgery behind. With one, meals are prepared in short order, while the entire house remains cool and pleasant. Our ranges sell from $9.50 to $15.00 on monthly payments. Connections are free.
